

CONTRIBUTORS

C.M. Andrew from Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, and A. S. Kanya-Forstner, York University, Toronto, are two historians who have collaborated their work on French African policy.

D.M.R. Bentley, who was educated at Dalhousie and elsewhere, teaches English at the University of Western Ontario.

Sophia B. Blaydes teaches English at West Virginia University.

Hans-Peter Breuer teaches English at the University of Delaware.

R.S. Downie is Professor of Moral Philosophy at the University of Glasgow.

Wilfred Cantwell Smith is McCulloch Professor in the Department of Religion, Dalhousie.

M.W. Steinberg is Professor of English at the University of British Columbia.

Bruce Stovel teaches English at Dalhousie.

Roland N. Stromberg teaches in the Department of History, University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

Clarence Tracy, now in active retirement, has taught at several universities in Canada.

G. F. Waller teaches English at Dalhousie.

Verse from:

Ken Cathers, Ladysmith, B.C.; Rosario d'Agostino, Toronto; N.C. Hough, Hampstead, Quebec; Norman Nathan, Boca Raton, Florida; Graeme McD. Wilson, Hong Kong.