

Mr. Stokes

Mr. Dinwiddie

Mr. Stokes's compliments to Mr. Dinwiddie. He took the liberty of waiting on him at his lecture room. After having enquired for him at Richmond - he enclosed a note from Mr. Custer - if it is not inconvenient to Mr. Dinwiddie to comply with the request contained - he may perhaps do so by enclosing a note which may procure Mr. Stokes admission at Mr. Herkells, to Mr. Stokes at the Cambridge Coffee house Newmarket Street Oxford road - Mr. Stokes is sensible that it gives Mr. Dinwiddie an unreasonable trouble & can only throw himself on his indulgence.
